Policies

Preservation tax credits shall be granted for work that conforms to the guidelines and policies adopted by the Historic Preservation Commission. In the course of administering the Tax Credit program, the Commission may amend these guidelines and policies as necessary. The Commission will make every effort to publicize the availability of the tax credits.

- A. The Historic Preservation Commission's Design Guidelines shall be the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings.
- B. Work must be completed and all applicable receipts submitted before the application will be considered. Submitted costs must include proper documentation of payment, such as copies of paid receipts. Appropriate receipts include supplier invoices, credit card charge slips or cancelled checks. Expenses should be accounted for on a July 1-June 30 fiscal year basis.
- C. Owners intending to apply for a preservation tax credit for interior restoration and preservation work or for new construction within an historic district are encouraged to submit their preliminary plans to the Historic Preservation Commission before undertaking the work.
- D. The Historic Preservation Commission cannot give credit for the value of labor performed unless the labor is performed by a bona fide entity or individual in business as a contractor. A value for labor provided by the property owner cannot be credited.
- E. Because of the high costs of properly maintaining historic structures, the tax credits may cover items which might be considered as ordinary maintenance, such as exterior painting, when they are vital to the preservation of the historic structure. In such cases applicants are encouraged to review these work items with the Historic Preservation Commission in advance of undertaking the work.
- F. If a property eligible for a preservation tax credit changes ownership, any unused tax credit shall remain with and attach to the property. "Unused" shall be defined as that portion that could not be applied to the former owner's taxes, including the pro rata portion paid at the time of settlement.
- G. A property not listed as an Historic Site or resource within an Historic District at the time restoration work is undertaken may become eligible for the preservation tax credit if subsequently designated and if the claim is filed within five years of completion of the work.
- H. In the case of new construction in an historic district, the cost of construction shall be limited to actual building construction costs, as documented by properly documented receipts. The costs of construction shall not include any pro rata share of road, sewer, or other site development or acquisition costs.
